Introduction

"God Emmanuel is so palpable in John's Gospel; it invites me to be in God's presence just as I am, for good or ill, to be welcomed, provided for, sustained by Jesus. Praying with John, I feel a profound sense of not being alone."

– Br. Curtis Almquist, SSJE

"What attracts me to John's Jesus is that he is an iconoclast who strikes at the very heart of those things we human beings want to cling to, yet which have absolutely nothing to do with the God that Jesus calls 'Father.' What does Jesus show us? Jesus shows us love."

– Br. Robert L'Esperance, SSJE

The Gospel of John has been a source of inspiration and guidance for the Brothers of the Society of Saint John the Evangelist since our founding one hundred fifty years ago. It is the foundation of our spirituality, and its words and images are woven throughout the text of our community's Rule of Life.

The Gospel and Epistles of John tell the story of a God who is love and who "so loved the world" that he sent his only Son, so that we "may not perish, but may have eternal life" (Jn 3:16). This Son, Jesus, "became flesh and lived among us" (Jn 1:14) in order to reveal this God of love to us (Jn 1:18), to lay down his life for us in love (Jn 10:11), and to gather us into a community of love (I Jn 4:9-11) that will share God's love with the whole world (I Jn 3:16-18).

John's Gospel invites us not only to learn about God, but also to enter into a loving and intimate relationship with God, in which God abides in us and we abide in God. In John's Gospel, we are assured that we are God's beloved children: "See what love the Father has given us, that we should be called children of God; and that is what we are" (I Jn 3:1). "I do not call you servants any longer," Jesus tells his disciples in John's Gospel, "but I have called you friends, because I have made known to you everything that I have heard from my Father" (Jn 15:15). The intimate connection which Jesus enjoys with the one he calls "Father" is the same intimate connection that is offered to us when we abide in him. "Just as the Father has loved me, so I have loved you; abide in my love" (Jn 15:9). Having received this love and allowed it to change us, we find that we are better able to love others: "We love because he first loved us" (I Jn 4:19).

This is the message that has shaped how we Brothers have come to see ourselves in relationship to God, and in relationship to the world around us, for over one hundred fifty years. And this is the message we want to share with you. Our hope is that through this offering of daily reflections and readings you will grow closer to God and will become channels of God's love in the world.

How to Use this Offering

"When I am caught up in the trials and tribulations of life, John's presentation of the mystery of the Incarnation is what brings me through. We are tabernacles of God, called to be bearers of God. All we have to do is say 'Yes.' But first we have to know that God believes us special enough to dwell within us, so that we might bring Christ into the world for other people."

– Br. Jim Woodrum, SSJE

In this six-week offering, we Brothers invite you to reflect with us on the person of Jesus, his mission and his message, as it is presented in the writings of John. In a short video each day, delivered to your inbox, an SSJE Brother will comment on a verse from the Gospel or First Epistle of John, sharing something of what this verse means to him and suggesting ways in which you might pray with it. Each week offers six verses for reflection.

We hope that on the seventh day you'll meet with a small group or a spiritual friend to share your experiences.

For Individuals: You can work through the offering on your own. Sign up for the daily email, watch the videos, and reflect on the daily verse. This journal is a place to record your thoughts (through writing, drawing or painting) in response to each day's reading. You'll find some ideas for more ways to pray on the facing page. Approach this offering prayerfully – and playfully! No two journals will be alike; make yours an expression of your truest self.

For Groups: Every Christian belongs to a community of faith (the Church), and because we learn so much from listening to one another, we strongly encourage you, if at all possible, to join a group or invite a friend to share in this offering. In your small group, you will be asked to reflect on the Gospel's message and respond in community to where and how you met Jesus that week. Additional resources are available online. Group leaders will have robust support in engaging participants in shared discussion and activities for adult and youth groups in a variety of settings. Visit the website to access leader resources or to download this journal, also available in a large-print edition.

How to Use this Journal

“Through the Gospel of John, I am drawn in a very intimate way into a personal encounter with Jesus. Jesus sees me as his friend and wants to speak to me directly. The Johannine texts are an invitation into a personal relationship with Jesus, where we are known fully as we are.” – Br. Luke Ditewig, SSJE

The format of the journal is simple. A daily verse is provided each day, with the remaining space left open for you to express the fruits of your reflection and prayer through words or images.

There is no ‘right’ way to keep this journal; what you do with it is entirely up to you. Be as creative as you want to be; try to capture the ideas that are most meaningful to you, the thoughts and insights you’d like to hold onto in the days ahead.

We hope you’ll choose to experience the journal alongside the daily videos in which Brothers offer suggestions for how you might pray with the verse each day. Sign up at www.meetingjesusinjohn.org, watch the daily video, ponder the verse of the day, and then write or draw whatever you want to remember.

As you reflect on the daily verse, here are some further questions you might ask yourself:

- ❁ As I read these words of Scripture, what thoughts or feelings do I notice in myself? What words or ideas capture my attention? How are my feelings engaged by this text?
- ❁ I imagine God speaking these words to me in a uniquely personal way. What might God be saying to me through this text? What implications do these words have for the way I see myself, the way I relate to God or interact with others?
- ❁ What do these words reveal about who God is, or about who Jesus is? Do they give me insight into the Divine Nature? How can they help me to better know, love, and serve God?
- ❁ What response do I want to make to these words? What prayer rises in me when I read and meditate on this text? What act of love or service might I be inspired to undertake as my response to its message?

We hope that this journal will open your heart, deepen your faith, and draw you near to Jesus in praying with the words of the Gospel of John. www.meetingjesusinjohn.org

week one God is Love

"God is Love." I John 4:16

The message of the Gospel and Epistles of John is a message of love. "God is love," states the author of First John (I Jn 4:16), and nowhere is that love more evident than in the Incarnation of God's Son. "God so loved the world that he gave his only Son," the Gospel declares, "so that everyone who believes in him may not perish but may have eternal life" (Jn 3:16). Jesus, the ambassador and revealer of God's love, gives his followers a new commandment: to love one another "just as I have loved you" (Jn 13:34). He is the Good Shepherd who "lays down his life for the sheep" (Jn 10:11), and he expects this same generous and sacrificial love to be evident among his followers. They too are ambassadors and revealers of God's love, charged with passing this gift along to others. "We love," they say, "because [God] first loved us" (I Jn 4:19). When we know ourselves to be loved deeply and unconditionally, we can love others with that same love that has been given so generously to us.

Question for reflection: The Gospel of John reveals that I am deeply and unconditionally loved by God, just as I am. How do I respond to this?

We believe and testify that God loves each of us boundlessly, just as we are. In daily videos, we Brothers share our personal journeys, reflecting on each day's verse and inviting your further prayers and reflections.

Loving God,

I ask to experience your profound love for me;

The Word Became Flesh

"The Word became flesh and lived among us." John 1:14

Walter Brueggemann, an Old Testament scholar and theologian, defines "vocation" as "a purpose for being in the world that is related to the purposes of God." In the Fourth Gospel, it is abundantly clear that Jesus has a strong sense of "vocation," an unshakeable belief that his purpose for being in the world is part of God's mission and plan. He has come to share with us his first-hand knowledge of the God of Love, the One he tenderly refers to as his "Father." "I declare to you what I have seen in the Father's presence," he says to his disciples (Jn 5:30). "No one has ever seen God," the Gospel writer tells us, "It is God the only Son, who is close to the Father's heart, who has made him known" (Jn 1:18). We do well to listen and watch and learn.

Question for reflection: What difference has it made in my life that "the Word became flesh and lived among us"?

Sharing our love for Jesus is part of our vocation as Brothers. Watch the daily video for our reflections on the day's scripture and an invitation for your further prayer. www.meetingjesusinjohn.org

Close to the Father's Heart

"It is God the only Son, who is close to the Father's heart, who has made [God] known." John 1:18

In his Gospel, the evangelist John reveals to us the intimate union that Jesus shares with his "Father." Jesus credits all his words and deeds to the One who sent him: "Very truly, I tell you, the Son can do nothing on his own, but only what he sees the Father doing; for whatever the Father does, the Son does likewise" (Jn 5:19). Jesus invites us into this same intimacy and deep connection when he tells us to "abide" in him as he "abides" in us (Jn 15:4). "Apart from me you can do nothing," he insists (Jn 15:5). "Just as the branch cannot bear fruit by itself unless it abides in the vine, neither can you unless you abide in me" (Jn 15:4). Knowing that this intimacy is possible is one thing; realizing that it is essential to our life and fruitfulness is another. It is a gift to be treasured and nurtured.

Question for reflection: What fosters intimacy and what detracts from it, both in human relationships and in my relationship with God?

We experience abundant life through our intimacy with Jesus. We hope this program's daily videos, available online, will deepen your reflections on the day's scripture and invite you to further prayer.

Jesus,

just as you lived in intimate union and daily communion with your "Father," so draw me to yourself in love that I may live so that all that I do and all that I say may flow

week four I Have Called You Friends

"I have called you friends." John 15:15

Human beings are made in the image of God and flourish in communities of mutual support and encouragement, according to God's design. Jesus gathered around himself just such a community, and taught them to "love one another" just as he had loved them. Their connection with him was to be the source of their life and of their love for one another, and he promised them that it would yield "much fruit" (Jn 15:5). In this early Johannine Christian community, the chief mark of a disciple of Jesus was love, and this was modeled in a special way by two friends of Jesus – the one simply referred to as "the disciple whom Jesus loved," and the other a woman named Mary Magdalene, whom Jesus had healed. The lessons these and other early disciples teach us about living fruitful lives in union with Jesus are still crucial for us today.

Question for reflection: Jesus has called me his friend. How does this friendship find expression in my life?

We believe that Christian community is essential to our life with God. We hope that you will share your experience with us online, watching the daily videos and reflecting with others in the comments.

Abide in Me

"Abide in me as I abide in you." John 15:4

We might think of Johannine spirituality as a spirituality 'for the long haul.' According to tradition John lived well into old age. The decades he spent meditating and reflecting on what he had seen and heard bore fruit in the Gospel that bears his name. It is a theologically rich document and a literary masterpiece. A key word in the text is "abide," and this abiding is, for John, the secret to living in intimate union with God and God's Son. In Greek, the word here translated as "abide" is also translated as "remain," but it is not a static word. It does not refer to some lethargic state in which one simply bides one's time. Rather, there is a slight edge to the word that implies "sticking it out" or "hanging in there" when things get tough. Imagine what this might mean for you: to hear Jesus say, "Stick it out with me, and I'll stick it out with you." Abiding gives our lives depth, so that we are not easily shaken when trouble comes.

Question for reflection: What qualities are essential for a spirituality 'for the long haul'? How can I sustain an intimate relationship with God over time?

We believe that abiding in Jesus is the source of our life and our joy. We love to share that joy with others. We hope our daily videos, available online, will deepen your reflections on the day's scripture and invite your further prayer.

We Declare to You

"We declare to you ... what we have heard, what we have seen with our eyes, what we have looked at and touched with our hands, concerning the word of life." 1 John 1:1

The Fourth Gospel contends that Jesus was sent into the world by the Father, to reveal the Father's love for every human being, and to invite us into the eternal life he shares with the Father and the Holy Spirit. Like Jesus, we too are sent: sent to share that which has been revealed to us in and through him, sent to testify to our own experience of God's love, sent to lay down our lives in loving service for those whom God so loves and cherishes. We are witnesses, both by our words and our deeds, to the Light and Life and Love of God, which have been made known to us in Jesus, our Savior and our Joy.

Question for reflection: God sends us into the world to declare what we have seen and heard. What is my testimony about God and God's love for the world? What is my gospel (i.e. "good news")?

As Brothers of the Society of Saint John the Evangelist, we are called by God to testify to the life that is in us. We hope that our testimony, shared in the daily videos, will help inspire you to share your own good news, wherever God calls you to be an evangelist. www.meetingjesusinjohn.org

Resources for Groups

You are invited to use this prayer journal on your own. However, we encourage you to share with others in the experience of Meeting Jesus in the Gospel of John. Spirituality is never a private affair; it always brings us into connection with one another. As human beings made in the image of God, and members of the Body of Christ, we are called to community. Jesus invites us into loving relationships with others, and so we 'meet Jesus' as much through conversations in community as through the study of Scripture or personal experiences of prayer. Sharing in this offering with others will enrich your – and their – experience.

At www.meetingjesusinjohn.org you will find information for leading small groups, created by the Center for the Ministry of Teaching at Virginia Theological Seminary. These resources are designed to support first-time group leaders – as well as those with more experience – in facilitating discussions. Materials for forming small groups in a variety of settings will be available, as well as activities built on each week's theme and scripture verses. For those wanting support and tips on how to run small groups, the CMT will be providing active facilitator support beginning in Epiphany and all the way through Lent. CMT leaders will offer webinars, Q&A sessions and troubleshooting for individual situations. Visit meetingjesusinjohn.org/facilitators or contact: facilitationsupport@meetingjesusinjohn.org

You will also find additional supporting materials, such as downloadable versions of this journal, including a large-print edition. Also available: resources for publicizing your small group meeting, including images and text for use in bulletins, emails, and on the web. Encourage group participants to subscribe to the daily videos at www.meetingjesusinjohn.org. Please contact techsupport@meetingjesusinjohn.org if you would like to add your whole community's email list to receive a daily email with the video from the SSJE Brothers.

Share your group's experiences, using #meetingjesus on your preferred social media site. Add, read, and share comments on www.meetingjesusinjohn.org. Use the prayer journal, videos, and participants' comments as inspiration for sermons.

“ In John’s prologue, we hear whispers of Christ’s cosmic role: ‘All things came into being through him, and without him not one thing came into being. What has come into being in him was life, and the life was the light of all people’ (Jn 1:3-4). This suggests that meaning is literally hidden in plain sight, and that Life and Light are never far beneath the surface of things. This is part of what makes John an especially illuminating path toward seeing Jesus and seeing ourselves as we read and pray with the Fourth Gospel. John wants to give us the Rosetta Stone to decipher that divine language, to make us light-bearers and life-revealers in a world hungry for meaning and thirsty for grace. ”
